WHO WE ARE

A citizen help centre in every neighbourhood we serve

Nagrik Vikas Kendra (NVK), meaning “Citizen Development Centre”, is an initiative of Human Welfare Foundation, New Delhi. It works under Vision 2026, a social mission formed together by several non-governmental organisations, whose guiding idea is “Creating Partnership with the Needy”.

Every NVK centre works at the last mile. Staff help families find out which government schemes they qualify for, prepare and submit applications, obtain the identity and entitlement documents those schemes require, and follow up with departments until the benefit reaches the family.

WHAT WE SET OUT TO DO

NVK objectives

Five aims guide every NVK centre, from knowing which schemes exist to making sure the information reaches every household.

1 A data bank of schemes

Identify and manage a data bank of government schemes for the disadvantaged sections.

2 Effective use of schemes

Help the target population assess and use the schemes effectively for their own benefit.

3 Benefits at the grassroots

Set up a mechanism for availing benefits and facilitating the implementation of welfare schemes at grassroots level.

4 Awareness among the people

Set up a mechanism for creating awareness of welfare schemes among the target population.

5 Timely information

Disseminate timely information on welfare schemes to the general public and community leaders.

OUR APPROACH

How NVKs work: nine steps from first contact to lasting change

STEPS 1–3 — Reach out

1 Advocacy
Speak up for families' rights with officials and communities

2 Awareness campaigns
Camps and sessions on schemes and eligibility

3 Promotional activities
Banners, outreach and word of mouth in every locality

STEPS 4–6 — Help apply

4 Document making
Aadhaar, ration card, income and other certificates

5 Application assistance
Filling and submitting forms online or offline

6 Application follow-up
Tracking each case with the department

STEPS 7–9 — Make it count

7 Grievance redressal
Raising rejected or delayed cases with authorities

8 Confirmation
Checking that the benefit or document has arrived

9 Impact assessment
Recording what changed for the family

In the field. Staff sit with residents where they live, note their needs and start the paperwork on the spot.

Applications by sector

Amount applied for, by sector (₹ lakh)

"Applied" is the total entitlement applied for. For health insurance schemes such as PM-JAY this is the insurance cover per family (₹5 lakh), which is why Health shows a large claimed amount. "Share of apps" is each sector's share of the 5,924 scheme applications filed during the year.

Checking papers first. Volunteers go through each family's documents before an application is filed, so it is not rejected later.

Why the received amount looks low

All applications
₹44.68 Cr applied

Health insurance cover ₹26.45 Cr · not cash | Other schemes ₹18.23 Cr

Other schemes
₹18.23 Cr applied

₹2.92 Cr | Not yet confirmed: pending, or family did not report back

1 · Families stop responding
Once the benefit arrives, many families do not answer follow-up calls, so the money is never recorded as received.

2 · Cover, not cash
Nearly 60% of the applied amount is health insurance cover, used only when a family needs treatment.

3 · Still in process
Housing, loans and pensions take months; many cases were still pending on 31 March 2026.

VOICES FROM THE FIELD · INTERVIEW

“We stay with the family until the help arrives”

NVK Programme Manager Kashif Abdullah talks to field coordinator Mohammad Irfan about one widow’s journey to a new start

MI
IN CONVERSATION
Mohammad Irfan
Field Coordinator, NVK · Sarai Rehman office · Graduate, Aligarh Muslim University

KA
INTERVIEWER
Kashif Abdullah
Programme Manager, Nagrik Vikas Kendra · Human Welfare Foundation

> “A scheme may exist, but without the necessary documents the person it is meant for can remain excluded.”

Could you introduce yourself and the organisation you work with?

Irfan: My name is Mohammad Irfan. I graduated from Aligarh Muslim University. I work with the Nagrik Vikas Kendra initiative of the Human Welfare Foundation, whose office here is at Sarai Rehman. Our work focuses on government welfare schemes. We connect the public with the government, helping people understand and access the support intended for them.

What does your day-to-day work involve?

Irfan: There are many kinds of schemes, each with its own purpose and eligibility conditions. We inform people about available benefits and explain which schemes may be relevant to students, older persons, young people, pregnant women and other groups. Awareness is only the beginning: people also need help understanding the requirements and completing the process.

Could you share a case where your intervention made a real difference?

Irfan: Some time ago I visited the collectorate in connection with Pradhan Mantri Awas Yojana forms. There I met a woman in considerable distress. Her husband had died after an electric shock, she had two young children, and she had been forced out of her marital home. Her children’s education had stopped and she had nowhere secure to live. She could not meet the District Magistrate, but an official directed her to our team. We spoke with her at length, listened to her situation and explained the welfare routes open to her.

What practical help did you provide?

Irfan: We first connected her with widow pension support, and she began receiving around ₹1,500 a month, a modest but regular income. We also helped her with a family-benefit scheme through which she received ₹30,000. She used it to buy a small machine and began making belt fittings and rings at home. That gave her an income of her own.

What happened to the children’s education?

Irfan: We helped admit both children, a daughter and a son, under the Right to Education process. At the time of this interview both were attending an English-medium school. We also applied for orphan-related financial assistance, and the family received ₹15,000 per child for the year, ₹30,000 for both. Taken together, the support changed the family’s circumstances.

Interview by Kashif Abdullah · continued on the next page

One family, step by step

1 — Crisis
Met at the collectorate
Husband died of an electric shock; forced out of her marital home.

2 — ₹1,500/mo
Widow pension
First support put in place after counselling.

3 — ₹30,000
Family benefit
Used to buy a small machine to make belt fittings at home.

4 — 2 children
RTE admission
A daughter and a son, now in an English-medium school.

5 — ₹30,000
Orphan assistance
₹15,000 per child for the year.

How important was documentation in securing these benefits?

Irfan: Documentation was central. She did not have her husband's death certificate, which was a significant obstacle. We guided her through the procedure, including identification from neighbours and an affidavit, and helped her obtain the papers. A scheme may exist, but without the necessary documents the intended beneficiary can remain excluded.

Did the family face charges or pressure from middlemen?

Irfan: Yes. Intermediaries sometimes demand ₹1,500, ₹2,000 or even ₹3,000 for processes that cost far less. We told her not to pay brokers and to follow the proper route. In her case we arranged an affidavit for about ₹30 and an income certificate for around ₹30.

Can a name spelled differently across documents affect a scheme?

Irfan: It can have a serious impact. If names or details do not match, an application may be delayed or rejected until it is corrected. People should check the spelling and consistency of their records and keep the documents that prove their identity. Correcting such errors is part of our field work.

The cost of going through a middleman

Broker's demand	₹1,500–3,000
Affidavit via NVK	about ₹30
Income certificate	about ₹30

Amounts in this one case, as described by Mohammad Irfan; official fees vary by state.

What this case shows

Information alone was not enough. The family needed someone to listen, sort out a missing death certificate, keep brokers away and follow each application through. That patient, step-by-step support is what every NVK centre offers, free of charge.

AN APPEAL

Behind every form is a family still waiting

A widow who has not received her pension in months. A student whose scholarship form was rejected for one missing certificate. A family living under a leaking roof while a housing scheme meant for them sits unclaimed. These rights already exist on paper. What is missing is someone to stand beside the family until the help arrives.

That is what an NVK centre does. This year our centres helped 17,818 people apply for ₹44.68 crore in entitlements. With your support, we can open more centres and reach families who have not yet found their way to one.
